UTSC Library Course Reserves

In order to better serve UTSC students, the library has changed how to access course reserves.

To begin, please check whether your course has any materials on reserve. To do this, visit the library website at utsc.library.utoronto.ca and click on the course reserves button.

When searching by course code, enter the first 6 digits of the course only. For example, ANTA02, then click on the course code button. Please note that you may also search by your instructor’s name, but course codes are a more accurate way to find reserves.

You will be presented with a list of any reserve materials and their call numbers. Please make a note of the call number as you will need it to retrieve your item later.

Visiting the UTSC library, you will find a course reserve section located near the front entrance of the library. Using the call number provided from the library website, retrieve the item associated with your course.

Check out your item using the self-checkout machine. To use the self-checkout, scan your T-card bar code and then the item bar code on the front. Once scanned, please remember to slide the spine of your item down the V to desensitize it.

Finally, print your receipt, which will tell you what time the item is due back. The UTSC Library staff hope that this new self-service check-out process will make accessing course reserves easier for you.

If you have any questions, always feel free to ask our staff as we are happy to help.
